PIANOS ABOUT TOWN ANNOUNCES 2024 PIANO ARTISTS

FORT COLLINS, Colo., May 8, 2024 – Pianos About Town, a program that brings local art and spontaneous music to the streets of Fort Collins, today announced the 12 artists selected to paint pianos in 2024.

Selected artists are Cassie Fazio and Joel Robinson, Chelsea Ermer, Chloe Cochran, Christina Pruneski, CM Canino, Emily Ku, Henry Hanes, Kara Johnson, Lydia Tarleton, Nicole Clemens, Rebekah Lwanga, and Ryan Sauter. View all the 2024 artist concepts at fcgov.com/artspublic/pianos.

Artists undergo a competitive application process and are selected by the City of Fort Collins Art in Public Places committee and community reviewers. Outdoor summer painting starts May 8 at the Art in Action tent on the south side of Fort Collins’ Old Town Square.

New Artist Profile: Rebekah Lwanga
Rebekah Lwanga is a 19-year-old self-taught artist who hopes to start a career in graphic design. Lwanga moved to Colorado at the age of 14 and was captivated by the vibrant art scene in Fort Collins.

“The city’s commitment to fostering local talent resonates deeply with me,” said Lwanga. “I am drawn to contribute to its cultural tapestry.”

Lwanga’s piano design reflects the adventures and connections forged when she ventured out on her own at 18. “I finally tasted freedom in a nurturing environment,” said Lwanga. “These encounters expanded my horizons, revealing the myriad of joys that life has to offer.” The bold geometric shapes and colors pay homage to Lwanga’s African heritage and her love of modern cartoons such as Gravity Falls and Adventure Time.

New Artist Profile: Emily Ku
Emily Ku has recently rediscovered her passion for art while pursuing career aspirations in aerospace engineering. Ku was selected to participate in NASA’s Psyche Inspired program, a program for undergraduate students to share the innovation of NASA’s Psyche mission through creative works.

“Growing up in an Asian household ensured that other career paths took precedent above my artistic endeavors,” said Ku. “I have learned to rediscover and indulge in those parts of myself that make me feel alive.”

Ku’s piano design is titled “Movements in Flow,” and features bright orange and yellow autumn leaves in the wind. The design symbolizes changes in the flow and passage of time and is inspired by the musical movements in written music.

About Pianos About Town
Pianos About Town brings local art and spontaneous music to the streets of Fort Collins. Pianos About Town started in 2010 as a collaboration among Bohemian Foundation, the City of Fort Collins Art in Public Places program and the Fort Collins Downtown Development Authority. Community members watch as local artists transform donated pianos into public art.

Scattered among 20 locations across town in the summer, and six locations in the winter, the completed pianos offer surprise interruptions of color and music across Fort Collins. The whimsical pianos beckon to passersby and invite them to make and listen to music together.
